

Where LP data is public

What 65 jurisdictions make public pension plans release about the private funds they hold, how to ask for the rest, and how many fund rows each publishes.

Summary

Only 9 of 65 make a pension plan release each fund's returns. They are California, Florida, Illinois, Maine, Minnesota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Texas. Elsewhere the law asks at most for fund names, cash flows or portfolio totals. No jurisdiction makes a pension plan release fund documents such as the limited partnership agreement (LPA); 34 let it withhold them.

Plans post far more than the law asks: 12,357 fund rows. A fund row is one line naming a fund in a public body's published list. Rows are not unique funds: one fund held by three plans is three rows. 3,691 rows sit in 19 jurisdictions where no law makes anyone name each fund, so those lists can stop at any time.

Where nothing is posted, ask. 64 of 65 have a public records law (a right for anyone to ask a public body for its records); only Singapore has none. Texas shows why asking works: its statute names 16 items, such as commitment, IRR and fees, that must be released, yet no Texas plan posts a fund table.

What this is for. A GP investor-relations team can use it to predict which of its LPs will put the fund's name, commitment, cash flows and net IRR (internal rate of return: the yearly return on the money paid in) in public. A placement agent can see where a public list already exists and where only a records request will produce one. A researcher gets the legal basis and the source for every verdict.

A companion workbook, 2026-10-28-where-lp-data-is-public.xlsx, has one row per jurisdiction, with links to each legal basis and each plan's largest published table, and a sheet listing every published table the survey counted. This report does not repeat those tables. It explains the findings and how they were reached.

Key terms

- Instrument. A statute, regulation, constitution or official opinion.
- Compelled. An instrument names the item and says it must be published or released.
- Exempt. An instrument names the item and lets the body withhold it.
- No duty found. The survey looked properly and found no instrument either way. This is not the same as “secret”: the body may still publish by choice.

- Per fund, total, per manager. The level the law asks for: one figure for each fund, one for the whole portfolio, or one for each outside manager. Only “per fund” tells you about a specific fund.
- Published, on request. “Published” means the body must post the item. “On request” means it must hand it over when asked. A refusal of a compelled item is then unlawful, but somebody still has to ask.
- Public records law. A law that gives any person (sometimes only residents) a right to ask a public body for its records. It creates a duty to answer, and a lawful refusal is an answer. A right to ask is not a right to receive.
- Fund register. A public register where the fund itself (for example a Luxembourg partnership or a German Investment-KG) must file its name or documents. The fund publishes itself; no pension plan is involved.
- Fund row. One line naming a fund in a public body's own published list, counted after removing duplicates within a jurisdiction.

Headline counts

Measure	Count
Jurisdictions surveyed	65 (45 US states and DC; 20 countries or provinces)
Not yet surveyed (statute websites refused access): Ohio, North Carolina, Michigan, Hawaii, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New Zealand	7
Fund rows published by public bodies	12,357 in 50 jurisdictions
... of which from bodies that are not pension plans (our estimate)	about 1,440
Rows on fund registers, counted apart	37,726
Legal instruments read	586
Published tables and reports recorded	300

The seven not yet surveyed have no verdict. Treat them as unknown, not as closed.

What the law compels, by data type

The survey gives every jurisdiction a separate verdict for each of seven data types, because “California is open” is not a finding: California compels returns and fees but exempts the LPA by name.

Data type	Compelled	... per fund, of a public holder	... of the fund itself	Exempt	No duty found
Fund names	43	29	13	2	20
Commitment	21	9	10	5	39
Cash flows	33	20	3	3	29
Returns	45	10	1	4	16
Fees / carry	25	9	5	8	32
Eligibility	3	0	3	8	54
Documents	12	0	12	34	19

Reading the table. Returns are compelled in 45 jurisdictions, but only 10 of those ask for each fund's return from a public holder. One of the 10 is Indiana, whose statute binds university endowments rather than the pension system. That leaves the 9 in the summary. All 12 “documents compelled” verdicts bind the fund itself through a register. None binds a pension plan.

The answer, jurisdiction by jurisdiction

■ Must be published, fund by fund ■ Must be published, as a total ■ Must be released on request, fund by fund
■ Must be released on request, as a total ✕ Exempt: the law lets the body withhold it □ No duty found (may still be posted)
○ The fund itself files it on a public register

Grouped by what the law compels of a pension plan or other public holder, and sorted by fund rows. † Some duties bind a body that is not a pension plan. The workbook gives each cell in words, with the legal basis.

The four groups

1. Each fund's returns must be released (9 jurisdictions, 3,513 fund rows)

California, Florida, Illinois, Maine, Minnesota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Texas.

If one of these plans is your LP, assume your fund's name and net IRR can become public: the statute decides this, not the plan. California, Minnesota, Illinois and South Carolina must publish and must also answer requests. Texas, Florida, Pennsylvania, Oregon and Maine are compelled only on request. Florida, Pennsylvania, Oregon and Maine post fund tables anyway; Texas posts none. Oregon is a useful test case: its statute makes per-fund management fees and cash profit non-exempt, yet the Treasury posts neither, and its tables warn that their IRRs have not been approved by the general partners.

2. Some per-fund items; returns only in total (23 jurisdictions, 4,416 fund rows)

Georgia, Virginia, Washington, Colorado, Tennessee, Missouri, Indiana, Arizona, Kentucky, Kansas, Arkansas, South Dakota, North Dakota, Wyoming, Washington, DC, Ireland, Norway, Finland, Switzerland, South Korea, South Africa, Brazil and New Jersey.

Here the law usually compels each fund's name, and often its cash flows or fees, but returns only for the whole portfolio or per manager. Several bind a body other than the pension system: Indiana binds university endowments, Ireland its sovereign fund, and Norway, Finland, Switzerland and Brazil bind regulated pension companies, which may be private. Expect your fund's name to be public, but not its IRR.

3. Only portfolio totals (18 jurisdictions, 3,968 fund rows)

Maryland, Connecticut, Louisiana, United Kingdom, Netherlands, Iowa, Oklahoma, Nebraska, West Virginia, Montana, Alaska, Vermont, Quebec, Australia, Denmark, Sweden, Japan and Wisconsin.

No instrument compels a per-fund figure of the pension system, yet many of these plans post long fund lists anyway. The largest are Alaska (655, mostly the Permanent Fund), Wisconsin (538), Sweden (495) and the UK (488).

4. Nothing must be released by a public holder (15 jurisdictions, 460 fund rows)

New York, Massachusetts, Alabama, Luxembourg, Germany, Utah, Nevada, Mississippi, New Mexico, Delaware, Ontario, France, Singapore, Hong Kong and Idaho.

New York is the notable case: NYCERS posts a 185-row private-equity table with no instrument requiring it. Massachusetts has reporting duties that name no item, so the survey records them as compelling nothing. In Utah and New Mexico a different public body carries duties: Utah's state fund of funds and New Mexico's State Investment Council. Delaware's records law exempts every data type.

Across the groups

The fund list is habit, not law (19 jurisdictions, 3,691 fund rows): New York, Maryland, Connecticut, Louisiana, United Kingdom, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Iowa, Oklahoma, Mississippi, Nebraska, Montana, Vermont, Quebec, Sweden, France, Japan, Wisconsin and New Jersey. A public body here posts fund rows, but no recorded instrument makes any public body name each fund. A plan could stop posting next year without breaking any law. Do not build a product on these lists without a fallback.

Asking is the only route (18 jurisdictions): Texas, Florida, Pennsylvania, Oregon, Tennessee, Indiana, Arizona, Louisiana, Iowa, Arkansas, West Virginia, Maine, South Dakota, North Dakota, Alaska, Ontario, Singapore and Wisconsin. What is compelled arrives only on request, so this is where a records request adds the most. Singapore is listed because its record says “on request”, but see Method and confidence: the label is probably wrong, which would make the count 17.

The fund publishes itself (17 jurisdictions, 37,726 register rows): Luxembourg, Germany, Netherlands, Ontario, Quebec, Ireland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Switzerland, France, Japan, South Korea, Singapore, Hong Kong and Brazil. An instrument makes the fund vehicle file its name, and sometimes its founding documents, with a register. This helps identify European and Asian funds. It says nothing about which pension plan holds them, and these rows are kept apart from the 12,357.

Where the fund rows are

The 15 jurisdictions with the most published fund rows. Dark: rows posted by pension plans. Gold: rows posted by other public bodies (our estimate). The name after each bar is the body behind the largest single table.

Alaska's place near the top is mostly its Permanent Fund, a sovereign fund. On pension rows alone it would fall well down the list. Across all 65 jurisdictions, our estimate is that about 1,440 rows (roughly 12%) come from public bodies that are not pension plans:

- Alaska Permanent Fund (sovereign fund, Alaska): 577 of 655 rows
- Argentum, Norfund, Investinor and Nysnø (state funds of funds, Norway): 335 of 362 rows
- Ireland Strategic Investment Fund (sovereign fund, Ireland): 162 of 162 rows
- Tesi (state investment company, Finland): 147 of 516 rows
- University of Washington endowment (endowment, Washington): 136 of 607 rows
- EIFO (state fund of funds, Denmark): 38 of 209 rows
- Saminvest (state fund of funds, Sweden): 31 of 495 rows
- North Dakota Legacy Fund (sovereign fund, North Dakota): 9 of 61 rows
- Utah Fund of Funds (state fund of funds, Utah): 6 of 6 rows

This is our estimate, not a count: it assigns each published table to its holder using the survey's notes, and some tables overlap (the Finnish and Swedish figures are before removing duplicates).

How to ask

1. Download first. Where a plan posts a list, the workbook links its largest table, with the date it covers.
2. Then ask under the records law. The workbook names the law for each jurisdiction. Ask only for the items the statute names: a refusal of a named item is then unlawful, not a judgement call.
3. Do not lead with documents. LPAs, side letters and offering memoranda are exempt in 34 jurisdictions. A request for them is the one most likely to be refused.
4. Check who may ask. Most US laws let any person ask. Some answer only residents or citizens: Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia and South Korea. A non-resident needs a local requester there.
5. For European and Asian funds, try the register. In 17 jurisdictions the fund itself must file its name, and sometimes its founding documents, with a public register. That proves the fund exists. It does not say which plan holds it.

Texas shows the best form of request. Gov't Code s.552.0225(b) lists 16 items that are “public information and not excepted from disclosure”, including fund name, commitment, amount received, IRR, remaining value and fees. The same chapter's s.552.143 makes everything else from a private fund confidential. So ask for the listed items, by name, and nothing else. Source as recorded: Tex. Gov't Code ch. 552.

Method and confidence

How the survey was done. For each jurisdiction the survey read the primary instruments: the statute, regulation, constitution or official opinion itself, plus the plan's own published tables. Law-firm alerts and press served only as leads to find instruments; none is the basis for a verdict. Each of the seven data types got its own verdict: compelled, exempt or no duty found. A jurisdiction not yet read is “unknown”, never “no”. Records were surveyed between 2026-08-30 and 2026-10-27.

How the figures were checked. Every number in this report and the workbook is recounted from the survey data file by a read-only script (`disclosure_report.py`) and then by the build script for these documents. The recount runs 12 self-checks: for example, that the four groups cover all 65 jurisdictions exactly once, so their rows add to 12,357, and that its count of per-fund returns compelled of a pension system matches the survey's own finding (9). The build adds its own checks: the fund-row total two ways, the grid against the groups, and each hand-entered label against the data. All passed on 28 October 2026.

How sure we are. Three levels apply in this report.

- Counted from the survey data. Every count, group, verdict and link. These are as firm as the survey's reading of each instrument.
- Our estimate. The split of fund rows between pension plans and other public bodies (about 1,440). It depends on overlaps the survey notes do not fully state.
- Our reading. The advice to GPs and placement agents (“assume your IRR can become public”, “do not lead with documents”). It follows from the verdicts but is judgement, not data. A few verdicts also rest on a reading the survey itself marks as inferred, for example New Jersey's per-contract fees and North Dakota's "each fund"; the survey's sourcing note for each jurisdiction says so.

What a fund row is. Each jurisdiction's figure is a floor: the rows the survey read and de-duplicated within that jurisdiction. It is not de-duplicated across jurisdictions, so a fund held by CalPERS and Oregon counts twice. The number of unique funds is unknown and lower. Register rows are kept apart.

Links. Every URL is one recorded in the survey data when each jurisdiction was surveyed. None was added from memory, and none was re-checked for this report.

Limits. Verdicts are Stargira's reading of the instruments, not legal advice. Some statutes (Oregon, Utah, Georgia, Quebec and others) were read from reproductions because the official website refused access; the survey records each case. Publication can lapse: even where the law compels the content, it does not compel a web page.

One entry to treat with care. Singapore's record says its one compelled item (fund names, filed by the fund on the partnership register) arrives "on request", yet it also records that Singapore has no request right. The only request in its notes is a paid copy of the register from the registrar (ACRA). The label is probably wrong. This report and the workbook show Singapore's item as a register filing, and its request route as "none located".
